Our SSADL Family

In the heart of SSADL, a family so true,
Where kindness and warmth shine brightly through,
We gather each year with joy and delight,
To celebrate members who bring us such light,
Senior horses, majestic and wise,
With stories and spirit shining in their eyes.
They grace our lives in so many ways,
We cherish each moment, each one of their days.
Clare, Trevor, Alex, Craigy and Ann,
Along with the rest of the wonderful clan.
We thank you all for the love they you share,
For smiles, the laughter, the genuine care.
The Championship show is more than just grand,
It's a reunion where together we stand.
With open hearts. We welcome you in,
To the SSADL family where love will always win.
To our members, the heart of the team,
Thank you for being part of our dream.
We honour each horse, each rider, each friend,
Together we stand, on each other we depend.
So, here's to the moment, both big and small,
To the family we've built, embracing us all.
From Clare, Trevor, Alex, Craigy and Ann, and the crew,
Thank you for being our family, so true.
With gratitude and love, in all that we do,
SSADL is home, because of all you.

SECTION M

PROMOTING EQUINE WELLBEING WITHIN THE SSADL SERIES

At SSADL, the health and wellbeing of all horses and ponies are of utmost importance. To uphold this standard, our officials and governing bodies actively monitor equines participating in the SSADL Series throughout the season. Should any concerns arise regarding an equine's wellbeing, SSADL reserves the right to request that the horse or pony is withdrawn from the ring or surrounding areas. This ensures the safety and comfort of all involved.

Monitoring Body Condition: The Importance of Fat Scoring

A horse's weight can fluctuate due to factors such as diet and exercise. To ensure your equine is healthy, body condition scoring (also known as fat scoring) is a valuable tool. This process helps assess fat coverage across three key areas:

- Neck
- Body
- Hindquarters

Using a simple 0–5 scale (available in the SSADL Rule Book), this method offers an objective way to evaluate your horse's weight and overall health. Regular monitoring can help you identify and address potential issues early.

Weather and Its Impact on Equine Welfare

Weather conditions can significantly affect an equine's wellbeing. Here are some key considerations for both hot and cold weather:

Hot Weather

- Ensure your equine has constant access to fresh water, whether at home or at a show.
- Minimize pre-exercise warm-ups to avoid overexertion in high temperatures.
- Provide shade wherever possible to keep your equine cool.

Cold Weather

- Clipped horses need adequate warmth with appropriate rugs.
- Fully-coated horses may require light rugging, depending on their environment.
- After exercise, allow your horse time to dry before adding a top rug to prevent chills.

Managing Weight for Optimal Health

Excess weight can pose serious risks to equine health. Breeds such as cobs, native ponies, and draught-types are particularly prone to weight gain due to their evolutionary adaptations to survive harsh winters. However, modern management practices—such as access to rich grazing, milder winters, and additional rugging—can contribute to excessive fat storage.

Why It Matters

Obesity in horses can lead to severe health problems, including:

- Equine Metabolic Syndrome (EMS)
- Laminitis
- Arthritis

Research shows that excessive weight gain more than doubles the risk of laminitis. For riders, it's equally important to consider the horse-to-rider weight ratio to ensure the horse is well-mounted and able to perform comfortably.

Special Considerations for EMS and Cushing's Disease

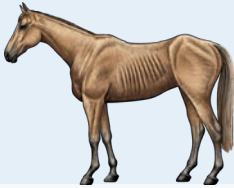

Horses with EMS may develop abnormal fat deposits (e.g., on the neck or hindquarters), while those with Cushing's Disease may exhibit fat redistribution alongside muscle loss. These conditions highlight the need for individualized care and careful weight monitoring.

Let's Work Together for Healthy, Happy Equines

At SSADL, we aim to encourage and support owners in maintaining their horses and ponies at a healthy weight and fitness level. By doing so, we can ensure they thrive and enjoy the best quality of life throughout the season. Thank you for being part of our community and caring for your equine partners so thoughtfully.

This is based on a relatively fit healthy animal, as overweight animals are also a welfare concern.
